

Robert Danhieux

October 25, 1929 - January 24, 2015

Robert J. Danhieux

Bob, 'Bud' to his family, was born in Green Bay to Joseph and Lucy (Bouchard) Danhieux on October 25, 1929. He died unexpectedly in Phoenix, Arizona on January 24, 2015.

He was preceded in death by his parents, 1 sister, Isabelle Stroobants, 4 brothers, Lawrence, Norbert, Bernard, and Bobby. He is survived by 2 sisters-in-law, Deolia and Charelene, nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

After receiving his degree at Saint Norbert College, Bob taught high school science on Long Island, New York and owned a successful antique business. He moved to Mesa, Arizona after retiring.

The family would like to thank Arizona Friend, Margaret Woolver for sharing her common interests in art, music, ballet and travel with Bob. Thanks also to Arizona Neighbors, Carol and Jim Misiuda for their companionship and willingness to always "lend-a-hand".

A private Memorial Service for family will be held at Allouez Chapel Mausoleum “ Never knew he was called Bud...I only knew him as “Mr” Danhieux, one of the finest teachers I ever had. He had a great sense of humor, often calling some of the girls Blossom or Buttercup to get a laugh out of them. To me he was an inspiration, his love and dedication to his chosen field of science impressed me greatly. Never unprepared, he spent a great deal of time planning lessons, fine tuning them to be enjoyable, true learning experiences. The last time I saw him was 1967 when I had just completed USMC boot camp and he was one of the teachers I went to see in my uniform. He was a role model to many and he was one of a few who inspired me to become a history teacher. Like him, I truly loved my subject and worked hard to follow his example to make learning enjoyable and fun for my students. Thank you, Mr. Danhieux, because of teachers like you I was a successful teacher, department head, high school vice principal, and principal. I have fond memories of you sir, and hope you were aware of the positive impact you had on so many. Rest In Peace.
